Dear Mr. Bharara:

I'd like to invite you to be a featured speaker at the annual meeting of The Wall Street Journal's CEO Council on Nov. 14 and 15, 2016 at the Four Seasons Hotel in Washington, DC.

We'd like to hear your thoughts on the current state of corporate governance -- best practices that you believe CEOs should observe. No prepared remarks would be necessary. You would be interviewed by a senior Journal editor on stage for about 30 minutes on Nov. 15.

The annual CEO Council brings together more than 100 of the world's leading CEOs representing $2.5 trillion in revenue and more than six million jobs to deliberate on business and policy issues that are critical to the global economy. Council members hear from top policy makers, economists and other experts, and then work in special Task Force sessions to identify the most urgent priorities.

Recent speakers have included President Barack Obama, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff General Joseph Dunford, IMF Managing Director Christine Lagarde, Treasury Secretaries Jack Lew and Tim Geithner, Governors Jeb Bush and Chris Christie, Secretaries of Defense Robert Gates and Ash Carter, President of the World Bank Jim Yong Kim, Senators Marco Rubio and Mitch McConnell, SEC Chair Mary Jo White, Nobel Laureate Angus Deaton, legendary football coach Lou Holtz and many others.

The meeting is covered by outside media and the Journal will publish a special report on the conference online and in the paper. You can find more information on the CEO Council, along with previous programs, at CEOCouncil.wsj.com.

I would be delighted to have you join us. You would have a highly engaged and influential audience. If you have questions, please feel free to contact me or (b)(6), (b)(7)c , Associate Editor of the Journal, at
